

The Comte and Comtesse de Castries, who as nephew and niece of the Duchess of Magenta, wife of Marshal MacMahon, narrowly escaped a horrible death a few days ago, while driving from the house in the Faubourg St. Germain to the Champs Elysees. Scarcely had they crossed the Pont de l'Invasion when their horses took fright and, instead of crossing the Place de la Concorde, turned sharp around to the left and dashed along the quay. Both coachman and footman were thrown from the box and, during an instant, when the horses were stopped by running against a post and a tree, the Count and Countess quickly alighted without injury. A moment later both horses and carriage were precipitated into the Seine, the horses being drowned. This exciting occurrence took place in the afternoon and, being witnessed by many thousand people, caused an immense amount of popular excitement.

AN EXPENSIVE AFFAIR.

From The London Spectator.

In a North Riding village lived an elderly man who had been married three times, but had been often bereaved. After the death of his third wife a rumor was circulated as to a fourth wedding. On being questioned he replied in the following decisive manner: "Nany, nut ah; what wi' marryin' on 'em an' what wi' buryin' on 'em, it's ower expensive. Ah can't aff'd it nno more."

for they concede to the Almighty the privilege of changing His mind when it suits His convenience to do so, and they have a revelation given to Joseph as long ago as 1841, which says that He may, for conventional reasons, alter or rescind His former edicts. On this occasion the Lord said to Joseph: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, that when I give a command to any of the sons of men to do a work cases prove it and in no way more conclusively by the testimony of Mormon women before the Federal courts at Salt Lake, upon the trials of their husbands for polygamy or unlawful cohabitation. Their perjuries were monumental and self-evident. It soon began to appear that the Church really meant what it said in enjoining upon its members a due and honest observance of the law; and while it may be just to neighbors' children.

He rightly mistrusts his own boy more than any other boy on the street.
He never stands in the door of the elevator.
He does not run to you with trumped-up falsehoods about your boy.
Such is the Good Citizen.
It is unnecessary to say of such a man as this that he does not keep a dog.

readily kept and not subject to disease. I of a American grizzly, though the real article is getting scarce. I would like to get one. The gr
I know of is in California. I offered his own $5,000 cash for him, but he would not talk of sell
him. You see plenty of so-called grizzlies aroun
they are not the real article though, but of the silv mixed variety, worth $250 each for the best spe others. Other bears are cheap enough."